Pointed Comment.

Nip: "You can inform "A Student" that the rosary is said in common every day at 12:45 by the employees and a few students, Our Lady's Altar, Sacred Heart Church."

Tuck: We might add, this practice of praying the Rosary in common by employees has been going on, much to our edification, for many months. When the Indiana weather is more clement, as it generally is, this group assembles at the Grotto. Another thing, the maids in Dillon have been having Masses celebrated regularly for peace.

Nip: "If conditions and dispositions on campus are such as "A Student" pictures them, then why is it necessary to introduce an extra spiritual exercise, when a regular, ordinary, primary spiritual exercise is daily provided--and generally ignored? Why are not our chapels filled for the daily Sacrifice of the Mass? Why is not the Lady Chapel filled for Eucharistic Adoration on First Fridays (it was well-filled last First Friday--Ed.)--at least for Benediction which closes Adoration. . . . If all students are really concerned about the gravity of world conditions, let them daily attend a complete Mass; let them participate integrally in the Mass by receiving Holy Communion." (--C Student)

Tuck: The obvious answer is that not all students are concerned about the gravity of the war situation. It will take a much more drastic whollop to arouse some. Last Friday night when the war news was so depressing, eleven men were at Night Prayer in the hall that prides itself as the home of campus spirit!

The Novena For Purity

Two days remain. There are hundreds of you who seem to think that you don't need a novena. Don't kid yourself. Any man who thinks that he can preserve his chastity in this day and age without the strong help of God and Mary is a victim of self-delusion. If he tells you wimmin don't bother him, he's either a misogynist or an indulger in flapdoodle. If he does not know the power of temptation now, let him be warned and not take umbrage because the Bulletin, which some of the elite think a rather crude form of "grace", suggests the existence of a sin called Lust.

Good Mannners Are Appreciated.

A member of the fairer sex writes a letter of appreciation via the Bulletin to the student who offered her his seat in a crowded bus. She was so startled that she fainted, and when she accepted the student fainted. . . . We have received unkind comments about Notre Dame students who make no effort to offer their places to women --good-looking ones, yes. Sisters have been known to strap-hand besides the unchivalrous. . . . At crowded Masses in the Main Church--in the days of faith, hope, charity and courtesy--it was traditional that students would offer visitors, ladies in particular, their places in the pews. "What, ho! What men are these!"
