"A Blue Valentine"

Monsignore,
Right Reverend Bishop Valentinus.....
Now of the delightful Court of Heaven,
I respectfully salute you,
I genuflect, and kiss your episcopal ring.

It is not, Monsignore, the fragrant memory of your holy life,
Nor that of your shining and joyous martyrdom,
Which causes me now to address you.
But since this is your august festival, Monsignore,
It seems appropriate to me to state,
According to a venerable and agreeable custom,
That I love a beautiful lady.
Her eyes, Monsignore,
Are so blue that they put lovely little blue reflections
On everything that she looks at,
Such as a wall, or the moon, or my heart.
It is like the light coming through blue stained glass,
Yet not quite like it,
For the blueness is not transparent,
Only translucent.

Her soul cannot be seen.
It is something elusive, whimsical, tender, wanton, infantile,
Wise, and noble.

She wears, Monsignore, a blue garment,
Made in the manner of the Japanese.
It is very blue --
I think that her eyes have made it more blue,
Sweetly staining it
As the pressure of her body has graciously given it form.

Loving her, Monsignore, I love all her attributes;
But I believe that even if I did not love her,
I would love the blueness of her eyes,
And her blue garment, made in the manner of the Japanese.

Monsignore, I have never before troubled you with a request ---
But of your courtesy, Monsignore, do me this favor:
When you, this morning, make your way
To the Ivory Throne that bursts into bloom with roses
Because of her who sits upon it ---
When you come to pay your devoir to Our Lady,
I beg you, say to her:
"Madame, a poor poet, one of your singing servants yet on earth,
Has asked me to say that at this moment he is Especially grateful to you
For wearing a blue gown."
