ABBAY OF GETHSEMANI

EACH YEAR AT EASTER, a group of students trek off to the Trappist Abbey of Gethsemani for a three-day retreat. In the hill country outside of Bardstown, Ky. the atmosphere is considerably different from what it is down at Ft. Lauderdale, but the wear and tear on your engine is likely to be considerably different, too. If you are planning to make the retreat at Gethsemani, make a reservation with Don Gillies, 327 Walsh. If you are one of those who will spend the Easter vacation on the Florida coast, plan to make your retreat at the Fatima Retreat House here on campus, February 15-18. The donation at both places is $15.00. Those who find this too steep a route out of the rut are reminded of the YCS Retreat at St. Joseph Hall, February 15. This is a one day retreat. The donation is $2.50.

THE COLD WEATHER is fast turning this winter into one of the best in history from the skiers' stand-point. And since it might start some to thinking about a trip to Boyne Mt. or Caberfae between semesters, here's something to put in your stocking cap. (If you're homeward bound between semesters, tuck this in your new bowler hat.)

THE MAIL recently contained a letter to one of the padres. He enclosed a letter from a co-ed at a near-by state school. In her letter, the young lady took to task those N.D.ers who have the habit of necking on every date. She suggests that it doesn't help our rep very much around her school.

SHE ENCLOSED a clipping from the daily student newspaper at her school, in which one of the lads takes what she regards as a healthy and well-deserved swing at necking. He takes the attitude--and she agrees--that the lower the mentality, the more inclined one is to spend his leisure time necking.

"In fact", he continues, "there are so many evil sides to the necking cult, it is a wonder that it exists. For instance, take the discomfort of it all. Not only does one endanger the spine and ribcage, but one is subject to....heartaches, headaches, and rheumatism, too. It's a menace to life and limb. Furthermore, one must brave steering wheels, ill-placed door handles, baroque dashboards, mace-capped gear-shifts, and vesuvian car heaters. ...One gets drooled upon, or presses one's lips upon a surface sometimes resemblingbaking powder biscuits.

Historically, this necking fad didn't get under way until the advent of the automobile, and didn't reach a wide audience until the televising of all those wrestling matches came along."

YOU MAY WISH to dispute the writer's dim view of the natural aspect of necking. But you won't deny that you have been taught that necking can be gravely sinful, if one's intention is to arouse sexual pleasure. And, moreover, even though the acts catalogued as necking be not seriously sinful in themselves, they may become serious if continued for a length of time.

IT MAY BE SILLY, but ain't it fun, say some. Sure, you might find some who will agree with you. But you've got some ice in your thought-box, if you think any of your intelligent associates are going to buy that line.

THE YOUNG LADY'S criticism stems, no doubt, from the fact that somebody goofed. Not you, I trust.
